Destructive Fire at Lawton. About 2 o'clock a. m. Sunday morning last,

The flames spread so rapidly that all access to the interior was cut off. This involved the destruction not only of the Odd Fellows quarters, but also of the Presbyterian chapel, which has likewise been the village hall. This building costing about $3,000, was passed into the hands of the Odd Fellows, W. & C. D. Lawton who charitably devoted foolish and childlike; and another steep the lower floor to a chapel for the Presbyterian and Episcopalian societies, and other religious purposes. From this it became, by the further liberality of the owners, the chief hall of the village for lectures and the better class of public entertainments, including political meetings. It was opened with ever handed impartiality to each party at the bare cost of lighting and warming it. Thus it On Tuesday last James Kelly, of Decatur, had become a public institution, and deep regret was manifested on all sides at its de struction. The fire spread from this building to the adjoining ones on each side of it The Bloomingdale Leader has spread itself viz., to the shops of H. C. Watson, the village undertaker, and also a wagon maker and only in the two buildings, but in damage to his stock; also his dwelling house was nearly involved in the fire and only saved by perserving efforts. The furniture was removed and the house nearly stripped of doors and windows. The total loss and damage done, probably exceeds $5,000. The Odd Fellows saved nothing from their hall, and the chapel organ and other furniture in the hall below was burned. There was no insurance on any of the property destroyed, as Watson's shop prevented it, or rather being placed on ing its benefits, nor could Watson get insurance at practicable rates on his two buildings. The beautiful shade trees about these build-Odd Fellows are now without a home and the village without a suitable hall, and it will be long before the loss will be replaced. Others, besides our Lawton friends, will regret the loss of the hall. The room where for many years enthusiastic and friendly to ashes without awakening the sensibilities 10. The Ohio election resulted in a sweeping democratic victory. They have gained from five to seven congressmen. The Detroit.
